Summary

Background

One of the most common specific learning difficulties is dyslexia – a difficulty in the acquisition of reading and writing that is neurological in origin. It can affect anyone, regardless of mother language or culture. According to the European Dyslexia Association, dyslexia affects 25 million of population in Europe.

However, despite these significant numbers of affected people, reading disorders are often detected late. These children are sometimes considered lazy, as they lack motivation and interest in what is too hard for them. Thus, it is really important to notice any disorders and difficulties as early as possible, to be able to apply strategies for dealing with them as efficiently as possible.

Thus, project team considered that creating an online assessment tool that would help preschool teachers and parents to notice any deficits in the areas important for the future study process would increase the possibility of early intervention. Besides, pedagogical materials created within DAP-2 (Exercise Book adapted to the specific needs of children at the age of 4-5) will be a significant supporting tool in this early intervention process.

Objectives

The main objective of the DAP-2 project was to develop assessment tools adapted to the needs of 4-5 year old
